NAZARENES HOLD
VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL
PLANNING PROGRAM

The second planning session for the Nazarene Daily Vacation Bible School was held Saturday evening at 7:00 p. m. at the Nazarene Parsonage. Mrs. Vivian Barlow, superintendent, led the planning session attended by Sunday School workers and others interested in the V. B. S. program.

Dates for the Vacation Bible School will be June 17 through 22, with daily sessions from 9 a. m. until noon. A special demonstration hour to display the work which the young people have done will be held at 9:45 a. m. Sunday, June 23.

The MEC will meet at Mrs. Norwood Ford's, Locke Mills, Monday night at 6:30 for a pot luck supper. For transportation, be at the IOOF Hall at 6:15.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The town will start tarring around June 17. In the past the town has tarred driveways for some of the people who requested the service. The same system will be followed this year and anyone wanting their driveway tarred should sign a work authorization permit. The amount charged for private tarring will probably be the same as last year.

R. McDonald, the chairman of the water improvement commission, stopped in the office last week to see if the town had done any planning or was scheduled to do any preliminary planning regarding pollution abatement of the Androscoggin River. Although the river isn't scheduled for classification until 1965 or 1967, many towns along the river have hired consulting engineers to study the existing conditions and make recommendations for treatment facilities.

I had the pleasure of spending Tuesday at the Maine Municipal Association's spring meeting in Rockland. There were very good topics on the program including the new laws that were enacted by the present legislature in the municipal field. The banquet speaker was Chief Justice R. Chapman of the Maine District Court System. Mr. Chapman spoke of the progress made this far by the court and of the results that the court should produce when it is in full operation.

The sidewalk that was on Church Street in front of Gould Academy has been replaced by another one that goes closer to the Academy buildings. Representatives of the Academy requested that they be allowed to relocate the sidewalk with the eventual aim being to widen the street. The Selectmen felt that it would be beneficial to both the school and the town if the street was widened. The Academy officials have stated that the sidewalk can and should be used by the people of the town just as the old one was.

Chamber of Commerce Seeks To Cooperate With Other Local Promotional Groups

The Chamber of Commerce held its June meeting at the Sudbury Inn, Tuesday evening, June 4. This will be the last meeting before the summer months. The next regular meeting will be in the fall, on a date to be announced.

At last Tuesday's meeting, the Chamber of Commerce engaged in a spirited discussion of many things which an organization of this sort, should be doing. There has long been considerable concern about numerous organizations carrying out civic responsibilities which the Chamber should have initiated but failed to do. This has brought about a certain degree of overlapping and duplication of interest.

This matter was discussed with officers of the B.A.D.C. and the Bethel Area Ass'n, as well as the Chamber members, to see where the overlapping occurs. The matter of expanding the areas of usefulness whereby the Chamber might better serve the surrounding communities was also given serious thought.

In a location where other communities like Rangeley, Bridgton, and Kingfield, are far ahead of Bethel in the promotion of its natural, economic and recreational assets, the Chamber was reminded that we too have a job to do in these fields.

Before the meeting adjourned, a Survey Committee, made up of the president of the Chamber, Clifford W. Laws, and Norman Greig, Guy Butler Addison C. Saunders, Richard Bryant, John Trinward, Sumner Burgess, and Erlon Paine, was instructed to continue with its studies during the summer, and be ready to make definite proposals and recommendations for expansion at the fall meeting.

The biggest forward step was the recommendation that the Survey Committee make a special study of the possibilities of a merging of the BADC and the BAA and the Chamber of Commerce so that the work now being done by each as an individual organization, might be carried on as part of the larger framework of the Chamber of Commerce.

The spirit of the meeting was a serious interest in doing whatever needs to be done to serve the Bethel area in the best way possible.

White Mountain Logging Railroads

by C. Francis Belcher

(C. Francis Belcher, Executive Director of the Appalachian Mountain Club, has been making a study of the present subject for many years. His former association with the Boston and Maine Railroad gave him access to much pertinent information. This first appeared in the magazine of the Club, Appalachia, and appears here with their, and Mr. Belcher's permission.)

LOGGING RAILROADS AND THEIR OPERATING METHODS

Yankee thrift and common-sense were paramount in the logging-railroad operations. The first line built was the only one that was narrow gauge, and it shifted to the standard American gauge of four feet, eight and one-half inches as soon as its connection with the country beyond was assured. After that all White Mountain logging lines were standard gauge. Why not, when many of the operators were going to take all they could and get out when the timber was gone? Furthermore, all the major New England carriers were vitally and competitively interested in the freight receipts from this fledgling industry and were not then operating under an Elkins Act which prohibited rebates, favors, etc. The early customs of rental by logging operators of rails, switches and other expensive track properties from the large railroads were commonplace. Frequently other items of equipment, large and small, were thrown in, and the Boston and Maine R. R. in the early 1900's had to assign track engineers to comb the White Mountains for rails and equipment which they had leased years before to some now-defunct lumber company. How some of those switches and frogs managed to travel over hills and up valleys will always remain a mystery.

For the first twenty years all the locomotives were wood-burners, consuming their own products on the premises. It is said that more than one engine crew in those days got caught short and had to cut fuel as well as load it on the tender. Later, most of these engines were replaced by the more efficient and less incendiary coal burners. All along, these engines were steamers, conventionally styled in the earlier days, but with special gearing and saddle-tanks over the boilers in later years. The earlier engines were four- and six-wheeled shifters with no lead trucks, and often they were rentals or cast-offs from the larger railroads. Later, as the derelict record piled up, different engines with lead trucks, smaller drivers and other refinements were built for the special duties these operations required. The mortality rate was high on engines, and lineage was often difficult to trace. A fortunate logging engine was owned by a number of companies before it reached the scrap pile.

In general the smaller lines constructed a very light road-bed and used very light rails and operated only during the winter months when Mother Nature had frozen everything up tight. On these operations little or nothing was done in the warm months, at which time the engines were taken back by their parent owners for excursion trains and summer passenger extras. The larger logging lines, and particularly those with long main lines from which stemmed many branches into side valleys, built a solid right of way main line whenever they could, and did operate the year round. As a result, a number of them ran passenger extras consisting of flat cars with wooden benches. To take advantage of this, several A. M. C. (Appalachian Mountain Club) excursions were organized on the Livermore, Lincoln, Swift River and the Rocky Branch. There are plenty of us alive today who can recall riding either into or out of Lincoln in the engine cab or on the riding car of the daily round trip of the East Branch and Lincoln R. R. whose last steam engine was retired in 1958.

All the logging rail lines stayed in the river valleys. With few exceptions they picked up their victim logs at huge landings built near the current cuttings, to which point the logs had been toled, dragged or twitched by horse teams over the specially prepared logging roads that today look like tilted contour lines or the paths of eccentric side-hill gongers. Here at the landings the logs were loaded onto sets of two-wheeled trucks equipped with couplers of sorts, none of which would pass an Interstate Commerce Commission safety inspector today. The log trucks could thus be set to bed loads of various lengths, without the restrictions imposed by framed flatcars.

The major problem of the engineers was not to haul their trains but to brake the heavy loads on the downhill run to the mill. Remember, the only air brakes were on the engine, with individual handbrakes on the trucks for the brakemen to set up tighter on a whistle from the engineer. It was a unique operation, and no doubt many engineers offered prayers that their long loads weren't too long for the many short curves between the landings and home. When the hogger whistled his crew for more brakes for the steep grade ahead, woe betide the brakeman who wasn't careful going over the grinding, twisting log-serpent, often wet or icy, in daylight or after dark. In an official report on the death of a log-train brakeman in 1900 the New Hampshire Railroad Commissioners stated:

... for its to be said that the business in which he is engaged is an extra hazardous one, that the machinery and methods in use in moving logs appear to be primitive and crude, and to afford little chance of even the most prudent brakemen to do the work in safety... we must expect similar casualties in which the best of men lose their lives.

This kind of logging was a man's world all the way from the tree on the stump to the millpond.

"Childishness?" No, "childlikeness," especially in faith and forgiveness.

NEW RECREATION CENTER IN RUMFORD TO BE BUILT BY LEW

A Bethel concern, the LEW Corporation, has announced plans for the construction of a 16 lane candle-pin bowling center to be located on Route 2, East Rumford, Maine. Construction will begin early in June and should be completed in approximately three months. Then, as your phone needs change, you merely plug on extension in where it's needed. It's so easy and convenient.

PAAP - MYERS

Miss Sandra Myers of Bethel was married on Sunday, June 2 in Denver, Colo., to Antonio H. Paap of 3061 South Fillmore Way, Denver. Rev. Stephen J. McShane of the Wellshire Presbyterian Church performed the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Wilbur R. Myers of Bethel, and the wedding march was played by Antonio Paap, father of the groom.

Mrs. Paap wore a street length ivory lace gown with a jewel neckline and carried white roses on a prayer book. Her matron of honor, a sister, Mrs. Charles Smith of Dixfield, wore a street length turquoise silk shantung and carried yellow roses. The maid of honor, Miss Saskia C. Paap, and bridesmaid, Miss Erica May Paap, sisters of the groom, were dressed in turquoise and tangerine prints with silk organza overskirts and carried cascade bouquets of tangerine carnations.

Alexander Hunter of Westchester County, N. Y., a classmate of the groom, served as best man, and Dr. Charles M. Smith of Dixfield, an usher. Miss Nikki McMillin of Bethel kept the guest book.

The bride's mother wore a green and blue print linen and the groom's mother wore a beige sheath. Both had corsages of cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. Mrs. Paap's traveling costume was a three-piece beige raw silk suit; her accessories were a single strand of pearls and the groom's gift to his bride, a pair of diamond and pearl earrings. After a wedding trip in the Rocky Mountain area the couple will reside at 276 Baker Hall in Boulder, Colo.

Mrs. Paap attended Gould Academy, Colby College, received her master's from Harvard University and is presently employed as a member of the counselling service at the University of Colorado. Mr. Paap is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Paap of 3061 South Fillmore Way in Denver. He was a three year student at Stanford University, where he was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa. He is presently a senior at the University of Colorado law school and is president of his class and his law fraternity Phi Alpha Delta.

SPOON AND HOE 4-H TAKES CLUB TOUR

On June 1, 1963, the Spoon and Hoe 4-H Club went on its annual club tour. At two o'clock in the afternoon, some of parents and all of the members met at their leader's home to get into their assigned cars for the trip. As two fifteen drew near we were well on our way to Step Falls in Newry. We arrived around twenty minutes of three. Many of the members made the climb in a matter of minutes, and the parents did very well in keeping up. Many pictures were taken at the falls during our stay.

After we had all descended from our climb, we decided to go on a little further to Screw Auger Falls for our picnic lunch. Pictures were taken here also. After our lunch, we headed home. Those taking the trip were: Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Bailey, Chris, Mark, Joe, and Janice; Mrs. Lawrence Young, Billy, Bruce, Anita; Edna Young and Don; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker, Peggy, Robert, Raymond, Calvin; Miss Katrina Lowe, Miss Cynthia Graves, Mrs. Joseph Deegan, Henry, Sally, Joan, and Kathy; Miss Cynthia Crockett, David and Clyde; and Beverly Heath.

On behalf of the other members and myself, we wish to thank our parents and our leaders for a very successful year. As this is our last meeting until next Fall, we wish to express our thanks.—Don Young, Sec.

OUR MOTHER

Whose love can equal the love of a Mother;

Whose devotion so loyal and true!

Who suffers so much with such joy for another,

Who works with such pleasure as Mother for you!

You hail with delight the friendship of others,

You revel in love of the sweetheart you've won;

Yet, where do you find a friendship like Mother's,

Unbroken till death calls, and life's work is done.
